50¢

FREMONT BULLET

Headed upstream

Photo courtesy of Alameda Creek Alliance

Volunteers from the Alameda Creek Alliance weigh an 11-pound steelhead trout after rescuing it below the Bay Area Rapid Transit weir on Alameda Creek Saturday. This trout, the largest documented there since the 1960s, and one other, were transported upstream to continue their journeys from the ocean to spawn, in Niles Canyon.